

Acknowledgements

Although this is the work of two individuals, its contents reflect the contributions of many people. We would like first to thank all members of our study group. Their interest in this topic and their probing comments have greatly improved the quality of this report. A special thank goes to Leon Kass. His work as Chairman of the President's Council on Bioethics and his participation in our study group have been a precious source of inspiration. We owe special gratitude to Rebecca Dresser, Gail Javitt, O. Carter Snead, Mary Ann Glendon, Steven Goldberg, Erika Lietzan, Lorie Knowles and Steven Croley for their help in matters concerning the administrative law and constitutional aspects of our projects. A special thank goes to Michele Garfinkel, Dan Sarewitz and Richard Hayes for their encouragement and detailed feedback on various parts of our report. Kathy Hudson and Joan Scott have been an invaluable source of information on reproductives and participatory methods. We would also like to thank Sean Tipton for his helping us better understand the reproductive sector and Marty Apple for his critical comments. Jennifer J. Kurinczuk has been very patient in guiding us through the maze of epidemiological studies on the safety of reproductive procedures. We also owe a debt of gratitude to Jon Tucker, Christopher T. Hill, and Roberto Mazzoleni, with whom over the years we had numerous and invaluable conversations. We would like to thank Cynthia Paddock Doroghazi, Robin Washington, and our research assistants Wayne Mei and Antje Uhlig for their assistance in helping to produce the current report.

We are very grateful to the Smith Richardson Foundation, the Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation, and the Richard Lounsbery Foundation for their generous support of this project.
